The face detection is a part of the auto detection feature of ImageMagick. It analyses and detects the facial features, such as eyes, nose and lips, and then points out the location of the face on the image. The feature is very helpful, especially when a portrait is blurred and face detection is applied. It works best with more than 50% of the face visible on the image. There is some error tolerance for the feature to detect faces in low light and with more than one face on the image. It can be activated with the Face Detection command (G Command > Face Detection) or the face>Detection>Create Mask command. The Hands tool is a part of the AutoFacelift command in the G Command panel. It detects a generally constant pattern of skin in an image (such as the skin on your hands) and you can then automatically enhance the areas affected by that skin pattern. You can improve and restore the areas of skin less affected by the image content. It is much like the Saturate command but it can be applied to any area of an image. It works by identifying the skin area with the canvas size of the image and it virtually wraps the canvas, setting the affected areas to the desired transparency, and removes the canvas around the image. For anyone who wants to make a batch process of converting the images into various sizes and formats, the Convert utility is a great choice. It is a good tool for creating uniform Photoshop batch projects, such as rasterizing and resizing of 50 to 1000 images into different sizes and formats. The application is designed to perform multiple actions, one after another with a simple click of a single button. Converter has the ability to work with any number of files and can be used to optimize the images with the help of Adaptive Threshold Adaptive Threshold command and the Sharpening command. It also provides the best and most realistic visual quality to the images.
